PROLOGUE

Written by Sir SAMUEL TURE.

o cheat the most Judicious Eyes there be Ways in all Trades, but this of Poetry: Your Tradesman shews his Ware by some false Light, To hide the Faults and Slightness from your Sight: Nay, though 'tis full of Bracks he'll boldly fwear 'Tis excellent, and so help off his Ware. He'll rule your Judgment by his Confidence, Which in a Poet you'd call Impudence; Nay, if the World afford the like again, He fwears he'll give it you for nothing then. Those are words too, a Poet dares not say; Let it be good or bad you're sure to pay. -Wou'd'twere a pen'worth; - but in this you ar Abler to judge than he that made the Ware: However his Defign was well enough, He try'd to hew some newer Fastion'd Stuff. Not that the name Committee can be new, That has been too well known to most of you:

But you may smile, for you have past your Doom; The Poet dares not, his is still to come.

things confider'd, 'tis better travelling in the Winter; especially for us of the better fort, that ride in Coaches. And yet, to say Truth, warm Weather is both pleasant and comfortable; 'tis a thousand pities that fair, Weather should do any Hurt. Well said, honest Coachman, thou hast done thy Part My four Abel paid for my Place at Reading, did he not?

Mrs. Day. Well, there's fomething extraordinary, to Coach. By my Whip, 'tis a Groat of more than ordinary Thnness.—Plague on this new Gentry, how liberal they are. [Afide.] Farewell, young Mistress; farewell. Gentlemen: Pray when you come by Reading, let Toby earry you.

Mrs. Day. Why how now, Mrs. Arbella? What, fad?

why, what's the Matter?

Arbel. I am not very fad.

Mrs. Day. Nav, by my Honour, you need not; if you knew as much as I. Well——Ill tell you one thing; you are well enough, you need not fear, who ever does; fay I told you fo,——if you do not hurt your felf; for as cunning as he is, and let him be as cunning as he will, I can fee with half an Eye, that my Son Abel means to take care of you in your Composition, and will needs have you his Guest: Ruth and you shall be Bed-fellows. It warrant that same Abel many and many a Time will wish his Sister's Place; or else his Father ne'er got him: though I say it, that should not say it, yet I do say it——'tis a notable Fellow.——

Arb. I am fallen into strange Hands, if they prove as.

Mrs. Day. And now you talk of this same Abel, I tell you but one Thing, I wonder that neither he nor my Husband's Honour's chief Clerk Obadiah is not here ready to attend me. I dare warrant my Son Abel has been here two Hours before us: 'Tis the verieft Princox; he will' ever be a galloping, and yet he is not full one and twenty, of all his Appearances: He never fole this Trick of galloping; is Father was just fuch another before him, and would gallop with the best of 'em : He and Mistress Bufie's Husband were counted the best Horsemen in Reading, ay and Berkshire to Boot. I have rode formerly behind Mr. Bufie, but in truth I cannot now endure to travel but in a Goach ; my own was at present in Disorder, and fo I was fain to fhift in this; but I warrant you, if his Honour, Mr. Day, Chair-man of the honourable Committee of Sequestrations, shou'd know that his Wife rede in a Stage-Coach, he wou'd make the House too hot

Col. El. Her Tongue will never tire (Afide.) So many, Mistress, riding in the Coach, has a little distemper d me with Heat.

Mrs. Day. So many, Sir? why there were but fix——What wou'd you fay if I should tell you, that I was one of the eleven that travell dat one Time in one Coach?

Col. Bl. O the Devil! I have gvien her a new Theam.

Mrs. Day. Why, I'll tell you—Can you guess how twas?

Col. Bl. Not I, truly. But 'tis no Matter, I do believe it.

Mrs. Day, Look you thus it was; there was, in the first Place, my self, and, my Husband, I shou'd have said first; but his Honour wou'd have pardoned me, if he had heard me; Mr. Busie that I told you of, and his Wife; the Mayor of Reading, and his Wife; and this Ruth that you see there, in one of our Laps—but now, where do you think the rest were?

Col. Bl. A Top o'th' Coach fure.

Mrs. Day. Nay, I durst fwear you wou'd never guess—why—wou'd you think it; I had two growing in my Belly, Mrs. Busice one in hers, and Mrs. Mayoress of Reading a chopping Boy, as it proved afterwards, in hers; as like the Father as if it had been spit out of his Mouth; and if he had come out of his Mouth, he had come out of as honest a Man's Mouth as any in forty Miles of the Head of him: For wou'd you think it, at the very same Time when this same Ruth was sick, at being the first Time the Girl was ever coach'd, the good Man, Mr Mayor, I mean, that I spoke of, held his Hap for the Girl to ease her Stomach in.

Enter Abel and Obadiah.

Exeunt all but Col. Blunt

C. Bl. How, the Committee ready to fit. Plague on their Honours; for so my honour'd Lady, that was one of the eleven, was pleas'd to call 'em. I had like to have come a Day after the Fair. 'Tis pretty, that such as I have been, must compound for their having been Rascals. Well, I must go look a Lodging, and a Sollicitor: I'll find the arrantest Rogue I can too: For, according to the old Saying, Set a Thief to catch a Thief.

Enter Col. Careless and Lieutenant.

C. Bl Yes, I know it; I heard fo in the Storm I told thee of.

C. Car. What Storm, Man?

C. Bl. Why, a Tempest, as high as ever blew from Woman's Breath: I have rode in a Stage Coach, wedged in with half a Dozen; one of them was a Committee-man's Wife; his Name is Day: And she accordingly will be call'd, Your Honour, and your Ladyship; with a Tongue that wags as much faster than all other Women's, as in the several Motions of a Watch, the Hand of the Minute moves safter than that of the Hour. There was her Daughter too; but a Bastard without Question; for see had no Resemblance to the rest of the notch d Rascals; and very pretty, and had Wit enough to jeer a Man in Prosperits Prosperity to Death.— There was another Gentlewoman, and she was handsome, nay very handsome; but I kept her from being as bad as the rest.

C. Car. Thou wet't not fo mad?

C. Bl. I had been mad, if I had not — But when we came to our Journey's End, there met us two such formal and stately Rascals, that yet pretended Religion and open Rebellion ever painted: They were the Hopes and Guide of the honourable Family, viz. The eldest Son, and the chief Clerk, Rogues — and hereby hangs a Tale.—
This Gentlewoman I told thee I kept civil, by desiring her to say nothing, is a rich Heiress of one that died in the King's Service, and left his Estate under Sequestration. This young Chicken has this Kite snatch'd up, and designs her for this her eldest Rascal.

thing for want of asking. Here, I am pretty near, there's a Groat for thy Confidence.

Teg. By my Troth it is too little.

C. Car. Troth, like enough: How long hast thou been in England?

Teg. Ever fince I came hither, i faith.

C. Car. That's true; what hast thou done since thou cam'st into England?

Teg. Serv'd God, and St. Patrick, and my good sweet King, and my good sweet Maiter? yes indeed.

C. Cir. And what doft thou do now?

Teg. Cry for them every Day upon my Soul.

G. Car. Why, where's thy Master?

C. Car. Who was thy Master?

Teg. E'en the good Colonel Danger. C. Car. He was my dear and noble Friend.

Teg. Yes, that he was, and poor Teg's too, I'faith now

C. Car. What doft thou mean to do?

Teg. I will get a good Master, if any good Master wou'd get me; I cannot tell what to do eise, by my Soul, that I cannot; for I have went and gone to one Lilly's; he lives at that House, at the End of another House, by the May-pole-house, and tells every body by one Star and tother Star, what good Luck they shall have, but he cou'd not tell nothing for poor Teg.

C. Car. Why, Man?

Teg. Why, 'tis done by the Stars; and he told me there were no Stars for Irishmen: I told him he told two or three Lies upon my Soul; There were as many Stars in Ireland as in England, and more too, that there are; and if a good Master cannot get me, I will run into Ireland, and see if the Stars be not there still; and if they be, I will come back I'faith, and beat his Pate, if he will not then tell me some good Luck, and some Stars.

C. Car. Poor Fellow, I pity him; I fancy he's fimply honest .- Hast thou any Trade?

Teg. Bo, bub bub bo, a Trade, a Trade! an Irishman a Trade! an Irishman scorns a Trade, that he does; I will run for thee forty Miles; but I scorn to have a Trade.

C. Bl. Alas, poor simple Fellow.

C. Car. I pity him; nor can I endure to fee any miferable that can weep for my Prince and Friend. — Well Teg, what fayest thou if I will take thee?

Teg. Why, I' will fay thou wilt do very well then.

C. Car. Thy Mafter was my dear Friend :- Wert thou with him when he was kill'd?

Teg. Yes, upon my Soul that I was, and I did how! over him, and I asked him why he would leave poor Teg; and I faith I staid kissing his sweet Face, 'till the Rogues came upon me and took away all from me; and I was paked till I got this Mantle, that I was: I have never any Victuals neither, but a little Snust.

C. Car. Come, thou halt live with me; love me as

Offers :

Teg. Upon my Soul, Joy, for I will carry thee then into my own Country too.

C. Car. Why, there's the worft on't; the best will help (Excunt. it felf.

Enter Mr. Day, and Mrs. Day.

Mr. Day. Welcome, sweet Duck; I profess thou haft brought good home Company indeed; Money and Money's worth: If we can but now make fure of this Heiriss Mrs. Arbella, for our Son Abel.

Mrs. Day. If we can? you are ever at your (ifs ;) you're afraid of your own Shadow; I can tell you one if) more; that is (if) I did not bear you up, your Heart wou'd be down in your Breeches at every turn: well -if I were gone -there's another if for you.

Mr. Day. I profess thou sayest true, I shou'd not know what to do indeed; I am beholden to thy good Counsel for many good Thing; We had ne'er got Ruth nor her Estate into our Fingers else.

Mrs. Day. Nay in that Bufiness too you were at your Ifs:) Now you fee the goes currently for our own Daughter, and this Arbella shall be our Daughter too, or the shall have no Estate.

Mr. Day. If we cou'd but do that, Wife;

Mrs. Day. Yet again at your Ifs?

Mr. Day. I have done, I have done; to your Counfel, good Duck; you know I depend upon that.

Mrs. Day. You may well enough, you find the Tweet n't; and to fay truth, 'tis known two well, that you elle upon it: In truth they are ready to call me Comnitteee-man: they will perceive the weight that lies up.

This will make them look about em, and think you me body: then promise them, if they'll be true Friends ros, to live and die with them, and refuse all great

Offers; then, whilft 'tis warm, get the Composition of Arbella's Eftate into your own Power, upon your Defign of marrying her to Abel.

Mr. Day. Excellent.

Mrs. Day. Mark the luck on't too, their Names found alike; Abel and Arbella, they are the fame to a trifle, it feemeth a Providence.

Mr. Day. Thou observest right, Duck, thou canst see as far into a Milftone as another.

Mrs. Day. Pith, do not interrupt me.

Mr. Day. I do not good Duck, I do not.

Mrs. Day. You do not and yet you do; you put me off from the Concatenation of my Discourse: Then, as I was faying, you may intimate to your honourable Fellows, that one good turn deserves another. That Language is understood amongst you, I take it, ha.

Mr. Day. Yes, yes, we use those Items often.

Mrs. Day. Well, interrupt me not. Mr. Day. I do not good Wife.

Mrs. Day. You do not, and yet you do; by this means get her Composition put wholly into your Hands, and then no Abel no Land. But in the mean Time I wou'd have Abel do his Part too. Mr. Day. Ay, ay; there's a want; I found it-

Mrs. Day. Yes, when I told you so before.

Mr. Day. Why, that's true, Duck, he is too backward; if I were in his Place, and as young as I have been.

Mr. Day. O you'd do wonders! But now I think on't, there may be some use made of Ruth, 'tis a notable witty Harlotry.

Mr. Day Ay, and fo she is, Duck; I always thought

Mrs. Day. You always think fo, when I have thought on't first --- Let me fee, --- it shall be fo we'll fet her to inftruct Abel in the first Place; and then to incline Arbella; they are Hand and Glove; and Women can do much with one another.

Mr. Day. Thou hast hit upon my own Thoughts .-Mrs Day. Pray call her in; you thought of that too did you not;

Mr. Day. I will Duck. Ruth, why, Ruth.

ACT III. SCENEI

Enter Col. Carelels, Col. Blunt, and Lieutenant

Lieu. DY my faith, a fad Story: I did apprehend this Covenant wou'd be the Trap.

C. Car. Never did any Rebels fish with fuch Cormorants; no Stoppage about their Throats; the Rafcals are all Swallow:

C. Bl. Now I am ready for my Plot; I'll go find fome of these Agitants, and fill up a blank Committion with my Name. And if I can but find two or three gather'd together, they are fure of me; I will please my selfahows ever, with endeavouring to cut their Throats.

G. Car. Or do something to make them hang us, that we may but part on any Terms: Nothing anger'd me but that my old Kitchen-stuff Acquaintance look'd another way, and seem'd not to know me.

C. Bl. How, Kirchen-fluff Acquaintance!

C. Car. Yes, Mrs. Day, that commanded the Party in the Hackney-Coach, was my Father's Kitchen-Maid, and in time of Yore called Gillian.

Enter Teg.

How now, Teg: What fays the Learned;

.. Teg. Well then, upon my Soul the Man in the great Cloak, with the long Sleeves, is mad, that he is.

C. Car. Mad, Teg!

Teg. Yes i faith is he; he bid me be gone, and faid I was fent to mock him.

C. Car. Why what didft thou fay to him?

Tg. Well now, I did ask him if he wou'd take any Counfel.

Col. Car. 'Slife, he might well enough think thou mock dit him. Why, thou should it have ask'd him when we might have come for Counsel.

Teg. Well, that is all one, is it not? If he wou'd take any Counfel, or you wou'd take any Counfel, is not that all one then?

C. Car. Was there ever fuch a Midake?

Countel: If we had but a Friend among them, that could but flide us by this Covenant.

Lieu. Hark ye; Colonel; what if you did visit this translated Kitchen-Maid?

Tege Well, how is that ? a Kitchen-Maid? Where is

C. Cir. But d'ye hear, Teg? you must take no Notice of that, upon thy Life; but on the contrary, at every Word you must say, Your Ladyship, and Your Honour; as for example when you have made a Leg, you must begin thus; My Master presents his service to your Ladyship, and having some Business with your Honour, desires to know when he may have leave to wait upon your Ladyship.

C. Cir. Not for a hundred Pounds, Teg; you must be fure to set your Countenance, and look very soberly, before you begin.

Teg. If I stou'd think then of any Kettles, or Spits, or any thing that will put a Mind into my Head of a Kitchen, I shou'd laugh then, shou'd I not?

C. Car. Not for a thousand Pounds, Teg! thou may'st undo us all.

Teg. Well, I will hope I will not laugh then: I will keep my Mouth if I can, that I will, from running to one. Side, and tother Side. Well now, where does this Mrs. Tay live?

Lieu. Come, Teg, Ill walk along with thee, and thew thee the House, that thou may it not mistake that however.

C. Car. Pr'ythee do, Lieutenant: Have a Care, Teg; thou shalt find us in the Temple. [Exeunt Lieutenant and Teg.] Now Blunt, have I another Design.

C. Bl. Thou art fomething near the Matter; but I'll cure my felf with confidering, that no Woman can ever care for me.

C. C.:

C. Car. And why pr'ythee?

C. Bl. Because I can fay nothing to them.

C. Car. The less thou canst say, they'll like thee the better; she is think tis that Love has ham-string'd thy Tongue: Besides Man, a Woman can't abide any Thing in the House shou'd talk, but she and her Parrot. What, is it the Cavalier Girl thou lik'st?

Arb. Given from his Mouth, this tenth of April -

He put me in a cruel Fright.

Ruth. As I live, I am all over in fuch a Dew as hangs bout a Still, when 'tis first fet a going; but this is etter and better : There was never fuch an Opportuniy to break Prifon. I know the very Places, the Holes n his Closet where the Composition of your Estate lies. nd where the Deeds of my own Estate lie. I have cast by Eye upon them often, when I have gone up to him Errands, and to call him to Dinner. If I miss, hangme.

Arb. But whither fhall we go?

Ruth. To a Friend of mine, and of my Father's, that ves near the Temple, and will harbour us; fear not; nd fo fet up for our felves, and get our Colonels.

Ruth. As I live, he has hit upon't by chance: now we fhall have Sport.

Mrs. Day. How, a Wench, a Wench! out upon the Hypocrite. A Wench! was not I sufficient? A Wench! I'll be revenged, let him be assamed if he will call the Soldiers, Abel.

C. Car. Stay, good Abel; march not off so hastily. Arb. Soft, gentle Abel; on I'll discover, you are in Bonds; you shall never be released if you move a Step.

Ruth. D'ye hear Mrs. Day, be not so furious, hold your Peace; you may divulge your Husband's Shame, if you are so simple, and cast him out of Authority, nay and have him try'd for his Life. Read this, remember too, I know of your Bribery and Cheating, and fomething elfe: You may guess: Be Friends and forgive one another. Here's a Letter counterfitted from the King. to bellow Preferment on Mr. Day, if he would turn honeft; by which Means, I suppose, you cozened your Brother Cheats; in which he was to remember his Service to you. I believe 'twas your Indiction; You are the Committee man. 'Tis your best way (nay, never. demur) to his and be Friends. Now, if you can contrive handsomly to cozen those that cozen all the World, and get thefe Gentlemen to come by their Eftates eafily, and without taking the Covenant, the old Sum of five hundred Pound, that I used to talk of, shall be yours yet.

Mrs. Day. We will endeavour.

Buth. Come, Mrs. Arbella, pray let's all be Friends.

Arb. With all my Heart.

Ruth. Brother Abel, the Bird is flown; but you half be released from your Bonds.

Abel. I bear my Affictions as I may.

Enter. Teg leading Obadiah in a Halter, and a Musician.

Teg. What is this now? Who are you? Well, are not you Mrs. Tay? Well, I will tell her what I flould fay now? Shall I then? I will try If I cannot laugh too, as I did, that I will.

C. Car. No, good Teg, there's no need of thy Meffage now; but why doft thou lead Ob idiah thus?

Teg. Well, I will hang him prefently, that I will; look you here Mrs. Tay, here's your Man Obadiab, do you fee that that now ! He would not let me make him deant ; no more that he wou'd not, fo I did take him in this String, and I did tell him if he did make Noises, I wou'd put this Knife into him, that I wou'd upon my South to brought unto Death.

C. Car. No, poor Teg, 'tis enough, we are all Friends:

Come let him go.

Teg. Well, he mall go then, but you shall love the King, or I will hang you another Time, that I will by my Soul? Well, look you here now, here is the Man that fring you the Song, that he is, I met him as I came, and I bid him come hither and fing for the King, that I did.

C. Car. D ye hear, my Friend, is any of your Compa-

mons with you?

May. Yes, Sir.

GO Gar As I live we'll all dance; it fhall be the Celebratton of our Weddings: Nay, Mr. Day as we hope to continue Friends, you and your Duck thall trip it too.

Teg: Ay by my Soul will we ; Obadiab shall be my Woman too, and you fhall dance for the King, that you fhall.

C. Car. Go and strike up then: No Chiding now Mrs.

Day's come you must not be refractory for once.

Mrs. Day. Well Husband, fince thefe Gentlemen will have it for and that they may perceive we are Friends, dance.

. C. Bl. Now, Mr. Day to your Bufiness, get it done a. foon as you will, the five hundred Pound fhall be ready.

C. Car. So well done Friends, thanks honeft Teg, thou Mall flourish in a new Livery for this. Now Mrs. Annice, I hope you and I may agree about Kiffing, and compound every Way. Now, Mr. Day,
